John Christie of Tech Transfer selected for Yvette Jones Award

June 15, 2016 1:30 PM
New Wave staff newwave@tulane.edu

Yvette Jones, the award's namesake and presenter added, “In my work, I hear about John all the time. People know him and they are grateful for what he does in furthering along not only the university’s technology ... but really helping the city of New Orleans.”

Noting that he had worked with Jones for many years, Christie said, “I have endless admiration for her, so to win this award in her honor is truly special.”
“People know [John Christie] and they are grateful for what he does.”

Yvette Jones

Technology Transfer helps translate research and knowledge from the laboratory and classroom into technologies that benefit the public.