Jaelle Scheuerman, Nancy Gunn and Tim Mclean, left to right, watch as Gunn shoots video of a 3D printer in action in the Tulane Makerspace on Thursday morning. The three were taking part in Think, Design, Make, a two-day workshop sponsored by the Center for Engaged Learning & Teaching in collaboration with the Taylor Center and Makerspace. Open to all faculty, the workshop introduces design-thinking techniques, as well as the endless possibilities for creating in the Makerspace. Tulane junior Kaleb Branch, right, assisted workshop participants with printing their designs.
