Friday (Feb. 5) is the deadline for abstracts to be included in the 21st Annual Tulane University Health Science Research Days. The event on March 3rd–4 will feature judged poster presentations and lectures.

The office of Laura Levy, associate senior vice president for research, is accepting submissions from faculty members, postdoctoral trainees, students, clinical residents and fellows at any of the Tulane campuses who conduct health sciences research.

The abstract submission form and instructions are provided online.

Research Days is cosponsored by the office of Michael Bernstein, senior vice president for academic affairs and provost. Most events on March 3rd–4 will be held in the J. Bennett Johnston Building, 1324 Tulane Ave. on the downtown health sciences campus.
