

Mystery, she wrote

August 07, 2017 4:00 PM Mary Cross
mcross3@tulane.edu

Summertime in New Orleans may be winding down, but there's still time to fit in some summer reading. Check out these thrilling page-turners penned by Tulane graduates in the infographic below designed by Tulane University graphic designer Kim Rainey.

A watercolor illustration in shades of blue and green. A large magnifying glass is positioned over two dark silhouettes of figures, one standing and one leaning over, as if investigating. The background is a soft, textured wash of colors.

SUMMER READING LIST

MYSTERY

BRENDA SEABROOKE'S Scones and Bones on Baker Street: Sherlock's (Maybe) Dog and the Dirt Dilemma is an entertaining tale perfect for young sleuths. The children's book tells the story of Digby, a dog with a nose for clues who teams up with the world's greatest detective to solve his latest case. Seabrooke is a 1963 Newcomb College graduate.

