

Students step up for a day of service

September 11, 2017 2:30 PM Photos by Cheryl Gerber
newwave@tulane.edu

Outreach Tulane, the university's annual campus-wide day of service, was held Saturday at various locations around New Orleans. The event is the oldest and largest community service event at Tulane and is hosted by the Community Action Council of Tulane University Students (CACTUS).

First-year students Alex Yoon, Kristen Courtney and Clementine Furber volunteer at Grow Dat Youth Farm in City Park.

Tulane student volunteers, from left, Cam Lutz, Asha Dash, Trevor Hawkins, Mark Lisi and Isabella Smith volunteer at Paul Habans Charter School library.

Freshman Emily Shapiro volunteers at Paul Habans Charter School, barcoding library books, as part of the annual outreach day of service.