

Shades of Bluedoo

September 17, 2018 2:30 PM Photos by Frank Aymami, III
newwave@tulane.edu

Runners of all ages take off at the starting line of the Fifth Annual NOLA Bluedoo Party/Walk/Run on Saturday evening.

The event benefits the prostate cancer research fund at Tulane Cancer Center and is held on the uptown campus annually in September — National Prostate Health Month.

Members of The Babydolls cheer for race participants as they near the finish line. The Bluedoo Allstars laid down some funky sounds during the three-hour event. The Amelia Airhawts keep the party groovin' with their high-flying dance moves. Dr. Oliver Sartor, left, medical director of the Tulane Cancer Center, accepts a $1,000 donation from the Laissez Boyz to the prostate cancer research fund. This year's event raised approximately $182,000 — the best year yet!