

Tulane associate dean elected as a fellow of Royal College of Physicians of London

September 19, 2019 6:00 PM Tulane Today staff
today@tulane.edu

Marc Kahn, MD, MBA, Peterman-Prosser Professor and senior associate dean at the Tulane University School of Medicine, has been elected to the fellowship of the Royal College of Physicians of London \(RCP London\). Founded in 1518 by a royal charter from King Henry VIII, the RCP is the oldest medical college in England. Fellowship in the college is a prestigious accolade; fellows assist with the RCP's objective of shaping public health by promoting and improving patient-centered care, influencing the healthcare agenda, and improving standards in clinical practice. Candidates are chosen based on their service in the field or contributions to medical education or research and other criteria.

Marc Kahn, MD, MBA