The "Wear Your Green Day" challenge resulted in a four-way tie among spirited Tulane employees. Winning departments were Newcomb-Tulane College – Student Success & Strategic Initiatives; Tulane National Primate Center Department of Pathology; Tulane University Medical Group – Information Technology Department; and Capital Projects and Business Operations. The winners received free lunch on Friday.

As part of last week's Employee Appreciation Week, Wednesday, Nov. 3, was "Wear Your Green Day." Tulane employees were invited to show their Green Wave spirit by wearing Tulane gear and colors and submitting photos of their team to the President's Office. Winners were announced on Friday.

See the winning submissions below. Congratulations to all the winners!

The Capital Projects and Business Operations department spelled out their Tulane spirit on the Elmwood Campus.

The Department of Pathology from the Tulane National Primate Research Center in Covington got “geared” up for a spirited display.

The Information Technology Services department of Tulane University Medical Group “Explored Technology” in a safari theme.

Green suited the Newcomb-Tulane College – Student Success & Strategic Initiatives group to a “tee.”
