

Crawfest 2023

April 24, 2023 11:45 AM Tulane Today
today@tulane.edu

Crawfest, an annual Tulane student-run music, food and arts festival, was held on Berger Family Lawn this past Saturday, April 22. The festival featured loads of crawfish and musical guests Apricot Jam, Ries Brothers, Honey Island Swamp Band, Cha Wa, Sax Kix Ave, Eddie 9V, Hans Williams, and Tank and the Bangas.

(Photos by Rusty Costanza)

Cartons of crawfish and corn are handed out to students, family and friends.

The line for crawfish stretches across the Berger Family Lawn.

First-year students Maeve McAndrews and Chloe Callan don crawfish hats for fest.

Third-year School of Medicine student Amanda Barber stands in line for water, crawfish in hand, on the sunny afternoon.

Second-year student Alyssa Oliva, center, takes a selfie with her parents Rowena Oliva, left, and Allan Oliva, in front of the Crawfest banner.

Carl, the Crawfest mascot, mingles with the crowd on the Berger Family Lawn.

Carl high-fives Heidi Johnson, the mother of third-year student Teigen Johnson.

Tarriona "Tank" Ball leads Tank and the Bangas during their set to close out Crawfest.

Students, family and friends take in the performance from Tank and the Bangas.

Third-year students Dylan Wolf and Zack Weinstock enjoy crawfish and a laugh in the shade of a tent on Berger Family Lawn.