The final week of play for the Tulane women's basketball team was indicative of the rest of the season, with highs and lows. First came the Green Wave's victorious sweep of Conference USA, taking the regular season title and then capturing the C-USA championship on March 12.

From a sweep of Conference USA to an NCAA tournament appearance, the Tulane women's basketball team had quite a season, with highlights in this multimedia presentation produced by Ryan Rivet.

Just eight days later, Tulane battled to the end but lost, 64-59, in the first round of the NCAA Tournament to Southeastern Conference powerhouse, the University of Georgia.

Regardless of the early exit from the tournament, the Green Wave and head coach

Lisa Stockton have much to be proud of in a 26-7 season. Take a look at a recap of the season and join the New Wave staff in congratulating the women's basketball team on a great year.
