The Tulane Jewish Leaders program, an initiative of Tulane Hillel, is holding a bone marrow drive today (April 12) through April 16.

Approximately 70 student volunteers will be taking DNA swabs at stations located across Tulane's uptown campus, its downtown health sciences campus, and at the Jewish Community Center in Metairie, La.

The drive is spearheaded by first-year students Jillian Goldberg and Mia Wirtshafter. Goldberg became interested in bone marrow matching programs last year after babysitting a very sick 5-year-old boy. Because no member of the boy's family was a compatible match to donate bone marrow that might save his life, the family turned to an international registry from which a donor was identified.

Through their involvement in the Tulane Jewish Leaders program, Goldberg and Wirtshafter turned that personal interest into an event that could benefit others.

Dates and locations are:

- Stern Hall, 9â€“11 a.m. April 12â€“16
- Lavin-Bernick Center for University Life, 11 a.m.â€“2 p.m. April 12â€“16
- Bruff Commons, 5â€“8 p.m. April 12â€“16
- Loyola University Danna Center today (April 12) and Wednesday (April 14), 11 a.m.â€“2 p.m.
- Reily Student Recreation Center Tuesday (April 13), 4â€“7 p.m.
- Tulane School of Medicine, 1430 Tulane Ave. Thursday (April 15), 10 a.m.â€“2 p.m.
