

Play Time in South Africa

April 11, 2011 11:30 AM Photo by Belinda Sellers newwave@tulane.edu

As part of the Tulane Master's International Program, the second largest in the country, public health student Carmen Springer, left, helps build a playground for disadvantaged children in South Africa. For the program, students simultaneously apply to Tulane and the Peace Corps, obtaining a master's degree from the School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine. (Photo from Carmen Springer)