Coming up with a new design for an Audubon Zoo Cruise ferry terminal on the Mississippi River was one challenge for students in a summer program at the School of Architecture.

Students in the design studio are beginning the school's 3.5-year master's program, which is for students who have an undergraduate degree in a field other than architecture. (Photos by Sally Asher)
