The ever-versatile Tulane University Marching Band, which thrilled parade-goers at Mardi Gras, took to the Dixon Hall stage for a spring concert on April 4, directed by Barry Spanier.

The free concert also featured the concert band, dance team, color guard and twirlers. Click here to watch a video of the performance. Anyone interested in campus cultural activities should check the online calendar for the numerous concerts, recitals and theater performances ahead in April and May.
