

Pencil pusher

September 25, 2013 2:30 AM Photo by Paula Burch-Celentano
pburch@tulane.edu

Senior Elizabeth Feroze works her pencil on a rendering of an anatomy study by Leonardo da Vinci in an intermediate descriptive drawing class on the Tulane University uptown campus. The assignment, titled "appropriation," calls for students to incorporate themselves into a well known artwork.