Key figures in the New Orleans rebuilding effort will come together in a May 15 panel to discuss the relationship between government actions in the post-Katrina environment and the attitudes and opinions of Katrina-affected residents as measured in public opinion polls. The conference chair is Frank M. Newport, editor in chief, The Gallup Poll.

WHO:

→ New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin

→ Lt. Governor Mitch Landrieu

→ Xavier University President and Chair of the Louisiana Recovery Authority
Norman Francis

→ Donald Powell, former Federal Coordinator of Gulf Coast Rebuilding

→ Tulane University President Scott Cowen.

WHAT: Panel discussion on how elected leaders and other officials associated with the post-Katrina rebuilding efforts have used, and can continue to use, poll data reflecting what the people say about what has been done after Katrina.
