

Top 5 reasons to pitch in at Wave of Green Day of Service

February 15, 2016 8:45 AM Infographic by Tracey Bellina-Milazzo
newwave@tulane.edu

1 GIVE BACK TO THE NEW ORLEANS COMMUNITY

2 LEARN ABOUT THE WORK LOCAL NONPROFITS ARE DOING IN OUR COMMUNITY

3 MEET DIFFERENT PEOPLE FROM AROUND THE UNIVERSITY AND AROUND THE CITY

4 GET OUT OF YOUR COMFORT ZONE AND SEE DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE CITY

5 HAVE FUN!
Lagniappe: Get a specially designed, commemorative T-shirt!

WAVE of GREEN
03.24.16

TOP 5 REASONS TO VOLUNTEER

The sixth annual Wave of Green Day of Service will be on Thursday, March 24. While Tulane University students are on spring break, faculty and staff members will volunteer to take one day to give back to the New Orleans area.

Whether sorting Mardi Gras beads at Arc of Greater New Orleans, beautifying City Park, or supporting other community partners such as Youth Rebuilding New Orleans, Second Harvest Food Bank or the Northshore Nature Center, Tulane employees will demonstrate how one day can make a significant difference in the community.

The day will begin at Turchin Stadium on the uptown campus, where buses will fan out to the different volunteer sites. The university provides round-trip transportation from campus to each site, snacks and beverages at the various locations, and a closing lunch at Turchin Stadium for all participants.

Check out these top 5 reasons to volunteer for the Wave of Green Day of Service, according to Katie Houck, associate director of the Tulane Center for Public Service. Then, register to participate by March 9. For more information about Tulane National Primate Research Center events, contact Stacey Schwankhart.