

Tulane medical students shave heads to benefit St. Baldrick's

February 24, 2016 8:45 AM Carolyn Scofield

cscofiel@tulane.edu

Phone: 504-247-1443

WHAT: Off with their hair! Dozens of Tulane University medical students will go bald in support of pediatric cancer patients in one of the area's largest head-shaving fundraisers for the St. Baldrick's Foundation. The national, volunteer-driven charity is committed to curing childhood cancers.

WHO: The event is organized entirely by first and second year medical students at Tulane. They hope to shave 40 heads and raise $40,000 for the St. Baldrick's Foundation and Tulane Hospital for Children.

WHEN: 10 a.m., Feb. 26

WHERE: The atrium lobby of Tulane Medical Center, 1415 Tulane Ave.

MORE: In the past seven years, Tulane students and staff have raised more than $300,000 for St. Baldrick's with more than 600 heads shaved. For more information or to make a donation, click here. Students are holding a silent auction through the end of the event. View all the items up for bid by visiting this site.