

Off with their hair! Tulane students celebrate St. Baldrick's Day

March 01, 2016 8:45 AM Carolyn Scofield

cscofiel@tulane.edu

Phone: 504-247-1443

Tulane University School of Medicine students and staff members lost their locks to help the fight against childhood cancers. First and second-year medical students organized the annual fundraiser on Feb. 26 for the St. Baldrick's Foundation, a national, volunteer-driven charity that supports pediatric cancer research. The "shavees" raised more than $28,000 this year.